The Cutter, Appl./crtl nr: 10/511965

Sharp edges

Fig. A. Cutting head without shield elements.

Fig. A1. Cutting head without shield elements - operator exposed to a potential danger due to a possible direct contact with cutting knives.

Fig. B. Cutting head with shield elements.

Fig. B1. Cutting head with shield elements - operator protected from a potential danger due to a possible direct contact with cutting knives.

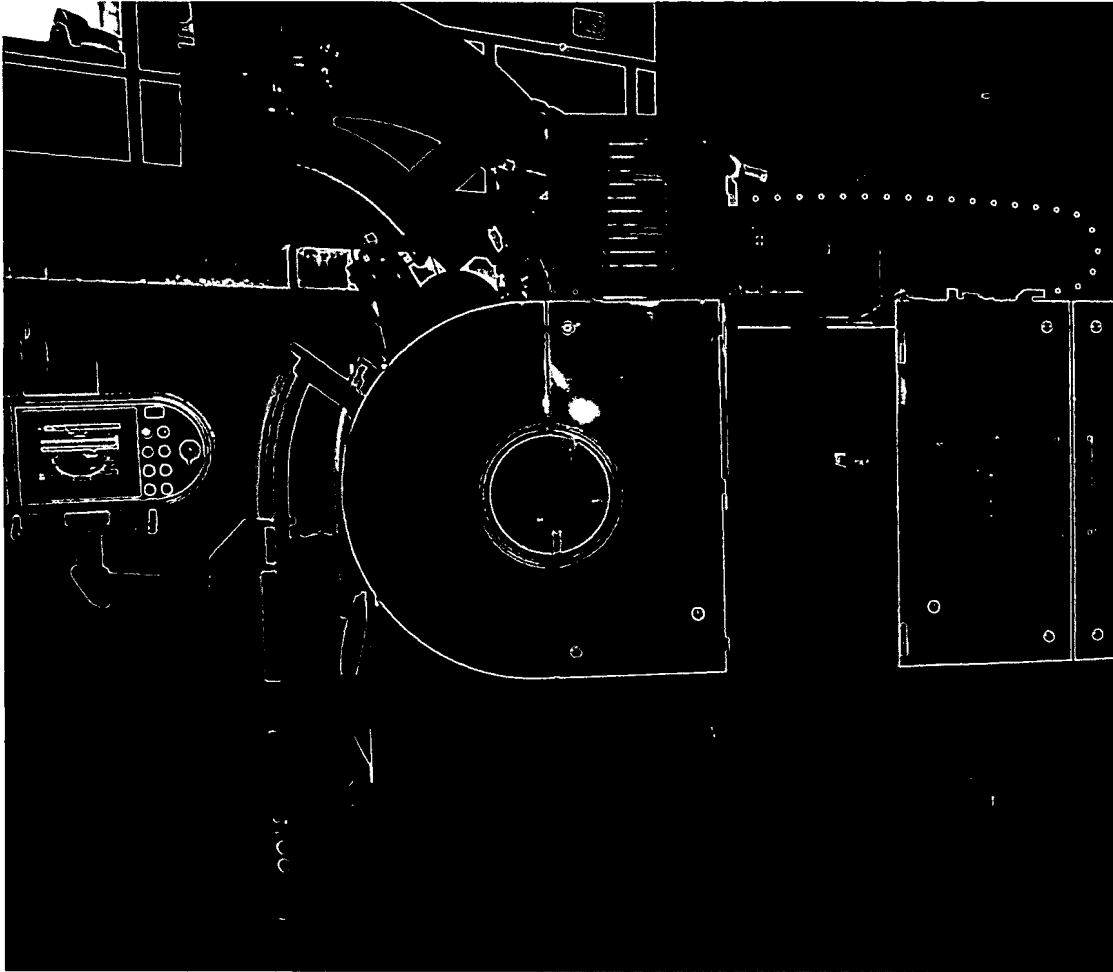

Fig. C. The cutting machine with compacting carriage moved away from the stationary frame with cutting head. Hence, an access space (P – claim 9) is created. The operator stands in the access space and is practically able to service all parts/assemblies directly from the floor level.
